ABOUT THIS COURSE

This is a seven-week cohort-based, (mostly) asynchronous, facilitator guided course, using both independent and collaborative learning methods. Participants will explore the challenges and means of integrating sustainability values, principles and practice into education. Systems thinking tools and methods will be demonstrated and participants will have the opportunity to explore their practical application within their own subject disciplines and as agents of change for school transformation.

IN THIS COURSE, YOU WILL

- Analyze their community as a system.
- Learn a structured process they can use to make sustainable systems change.
- Gain new tools for their systems thinking toolbox.
- Connect with a global cohort of like-minded educators working as agents of sustainable change.
- Explore real-world examples of tools in action from Compass Educators around the world.
- Receive personalized feedback to support their learning.
- Create an action plan for initiating systemic change in their community.

WHO SHOULD PARTICIPATE

Educators who have completed Compass Education Level 1 "Compass Practitioner" course and want to learn more about how to create systems change in their community.

WHAT YOU WILL TAKE AWAY FROM THIS COURSE

- A deeper understanding of systems, systemic change, and systems thinking.
- A step-by-step process for making systemic change in your community.
- An array of useful strategies for change-making.
- New systems tools that can be used to support powerful student learning.
- An action plan for bringing systems change to your community.
- A global professional network of educators working towards greater sustainability.
- Qualification to apply for Compass Education Level 2 "Compass Educator" Certification which can lead towards certification as a Compass Trainer.

WHAT OUR PARTICIPANTS SAY ABOUT THIS COURSE

"EVERY educator and administrator should be aware of the Compass model and the systems thinking that underpins it; our ability to send students out into the world after educating them from this perspective would be literally earth-changing!"
—Suji D, International School of Kuala Lumpur

"Anyone interested in 21st Century leadership, current practice, and approaches to teaching and learning is highly recommended to complete this course. Once you learn to see the simplicity of complexity in and around your daily life and interactions, you will be surprised at all the things you begin to recognise where you can make a difference, for the students in your care and beyond. "
—Elaine, International School of Phnom Penh
